Subject: Re: Questions Regarding Tomorrow's OR CZARA Managers' Meeting

I agree we should develop a strategy for working with the state post-determination but before we do that, I think we should have a clear strategy of how/if/when we give the state a heads up prior to the official announcement. I know I was out of the loop for a week but I don't think we have that ironed out yet.

Do you think we should discuss how we plan to work with the state post determination during tomorrow's managers' meeting?

Do you have anything you want to discuss regarding pesticides at the managers' meeting?

My email is a little funky. It looked like it might be canceled. I'm on a climate change webinar so glad to listen in on that. It's probably most important for us to talk about where we're at with the rationale, timelines, etc.

But at some point soon, we should talk with the managers about the plan post-determination. As in my comments to the RA briefing, I think it's important for us to strategize how we message this to the State so that we're in a mode to work together instead of having them balk at working with us. If they were even a little interested, I think it would be great to see about setting up with the possibility of say, meeting in February about the riparian rule, then setting up a schedule for each of the conditions. It would probably be something we'd run by Karen Tarnow who would send it up her chain. But if Christine, Dan, and Dennis also conveyed this via their own counterparts, that would be good. If it were put to me and the state were amenable, I'd throw out the idea of setting up a series of meetings over the next 6 months on the viability of getting to an approval program for each condition. I'd start small with the key people focused on a particular subject. I think Alan and I have some ideas on who should be there for each of our issues.

I do want to talk with Allison and Alan about the pesticides topic. I'll send them an invite separately.

I cancelled the call as Don, Alan and according to Alan, you would not be available. Did you not get the cancellation notice? Instead Allison and I will be talking.

Can I call you after the call to find out whether you have issues to discuss with the managers?
